Preface

Background of the Industry

Beauty industry is one of the key service industries in Hong Kong. In the early stage of industry development, beauty salons were relatively small in scale, mostly small shops either located in a shopping mall or occupying an upstairs flat. With the growing concern about one's personal appearance, the beauty industry has grown significantly in recent years. Large beauty salon chains mushroomed alongside the emergence of a wide variety of beauty products and equipment in the market. Beauty salons also expanded their range of services to include training programmes in addition to beauty care treatments and the sale of beauty products. As a result, there are numerous training providers offering a vast variety of courses for novice beauticians. As beauty is a highly skill-based industry, professional training is imperative to its development. Traditionally, novice beauticians have been trained as apprentices, and recently some companies have adopted international standards in their training programme. As a result, the standards of the education and training programmes vary to considerable extent. The industry's need for qualified manpower and enhanced on-the-job training is increasingly pressing in the face of economic restructuring where emphasis being shifted towards services industries. With the gradual emergence of a knowledge-based society, more effective flow of information and more sophisticated consumers, the industry has seen a burgeoning demand for professional beauty services. In the long run, it must work towards internationalisation and professionalisation as well as improving the skills level of beauticians and enabling them to integrate theory with practice, so as to enhance the quality of beauty services in Hong Kong.

Current Situation of the Industry

2. Since Hong Kong's economy took off in the 1980s, the beauty industry has sustained exponential growth. It has been one of the fast growing industries in the city and has achieved a pre-eminent position in Asia's beauty industry. Beauty salons in Hong Kong have been expanding in scale with diverse business types, which mainly include large chains, brand shops and franchise operations. According to the Census and Statistics Department, there are more than 5,000 registered beauty-related establishments, which engage more than 40,000 practitioners including beauticians, nail artists, make-up artists and beauty product salespersons. The existence of a large local market also contributed significantly to the development of the industry. Lately, there has been further development of beauty care services and cosmetic products, as well as growing popularity of newer beauty services such as nail care. Furthermore, the growing male market for beauty care and slimming treatments has opened up additional market opportunities.

3. The beauty industry encompasses a wide variety of work, which can be categorised into facial care, body care and make-up. Facial care mainly includes skin care treatments and client consultation on skin care routine and products. Body care includes manicure and pedicure, hair removal, massage, aromatherapy as well as equipment-aided body treatments such as those for slimming. The category of make-up covers day and evening make-up as well as professional cosmetics, including stage, photography, film and special effects make-up services.

4. Apart from make-up and facial care, slimming services have come into vogue in recent years. The history of slimming services in Hong Kong goes back to the early 1980s when international slimming centres began to appear in the city. The 1990s saw a gradual increase in popularity of slimming services which continues to this day, resulting in the burgeoning of slimming centres large and small and a wide range of slimming products launched in the market.

5. The emergence of the spa market has gradually changed the face of the beauty industry. Spa treatments require longer service time than conventional beauty services. In those treatments, various materials such as water, light, music, colours, aromas as well as a wide range of massage techniques are used therapeutically. Since specialist knowledge and techniques are required of spa practitioners, the expansion of the spa market will boost the demand for relevant training programmes.

6. Recent years have also seen a significant development of health care services as a result of the growing awareness of the importance of health care and balanced diet. Those services include massage therapies and Chinese medicine treatments, as well as nutrition and physical exercise programmes. As in other sectors of the beauty industry, customers are increasingly expecting quality services that are capable of enhancing wellness and providing them with a safe, reliable and natural beautifying experience. Therefore, there is still ample room for development in the health care sector.

7. The Mainland and Hong Kong Closer Economic Partnership Arrangement (CEPA) has created new opportunities for the beauty industry in Hong Kong. In recent years, the beauty industry on the Mainland has experienced rapid growth. It is reported that the average annual consumer expenditure for the beauty market on the Mainland runs at RMB 100 billion with around 500 million potential consumers per year. Mainland consumers have great confidence in Hong Kong's beauty services and products. The high reputation enjoyed by our beauty industry has facilitated its entry into the Mainland market. Since 2004, around 200 beauty establishments in Hong Kong have set up branches in Mainland cities such as Beijing, Shanghai, Guangzhou, Shenzhen and Hangzhou. In view of its prospective continued expansion, the beauty industry in Hong Kong anticipates a growing demand for professional practitioners working across the border.

8. Since beauty and cosmetic shops are among the most visited attractions to Mainland tourists in Hong Kong, the introduction of the Individual Visit Scheme has also benefited the beauty industry in the city, especially the beauty care and cosmetics retail sectors. In view of the great confidence and popularity among Mainland customers that the industry has won, the introduction of the Scheme as well as the rising demand for cosmetic products as a result of the increase of Mainland tourists, the cosmetics sector has high hopes for further expansion by opening up new retail outlets in Hong Kong. As more and more long-standing global beauty brands have opened their beauty shops in Hong Kong, the industry expects a significant increase in the demand for professional beauticians.

9. Since the quality of beauty services has direct bearing on consumers' health, their confidence in the services depends on a high level of specialist knowledge and skills of beauty practitioners. At present, not all practitioners are up to standard in terms of skills. While most practitioners are only provided with short-term on-the-job training enough to enable them to handle general routine duties, theoretical knowledge and technical skills of beauty treatments are mainly acquired by taking a wide range of courses provided by local beauty training schools and obtaining relevant international qualifications. However, industry-wide standards are still lacking for technical skills training. Although new technologies and equipment are introduced to enhance service quality of the industry, practitioners have, in general, been slow to take advantage of them because the training they receive is mainly based on prevailing industry standards and requirements. Consequently, practitioners only have the operational knowledge and skills requisite for day-to-day operation of certain equipment, while lacking a complete understanding of other relevant equipment and theories.

10. With rising economic prosperity and a stronger emphasis on living standards and quality of life, the development of the beauty industry in Hong Kong has become increasingly diversified. The industry is also geared towards providing professional and comprehensive services as a result of rising standards of beauty services across the world and growing consumer expectations of their quality. Rapid technological advancements and changing market demand have made it necessary for beauty practitioners to equip themselves with knowledge of newly developed techniques and equipment through continuous learning. By enhancing their professional skills and competitiveness, they will be able to offer services of the highest quality.

Specification of Competency Standards

11. In view of the industry's current situation and future development, there is an urgent need for a Specification of Competency Standards (SCS) to be formulated to provide a comprehensive training framework to enhance the technical standards, competitiveness and overall service quality of the industry.

12. The SCS covers the competency standards required at various levels in the industry. These standards are set with reference to competency such as industry-specific knowledge, professional skills and soft skills that are required for performing individual job functions. The functional areas and the competency standards in the SCS are practical-oriented and competence-based. Apart from the needs arising from the current situation, future industry development and social trends have also been taken into consideration during the formulation of standards related to specific professional knowledge and skills.

13. In the long run, the industry-recognised SCS will become the blueprint for industry training. It will assist in ensuring that programmes offered by training providers will cover a full range of knowledge and skills required for the industry at the present and in the future. In addition, it will indicate clear pathways with reference to which employees can plan their own career-related learning programmes, thus facilitating the full implementation of the Qualifications Framework.

14. In view of the industry's current situation and development trends, and with reference to relevant standards and practices both home and abroad, the Beauty Industry Training Advisory Committee (Beauty ITAC), which comprises representatives from the employers and employees in the industry and the Government, has prepared a draft SCS for the Beauty Industry. The SCS will serve as a guide by which practitioners of the industry can formulate a clear career development plan.

Chapter 2

Qualifications Framework

Hong Kong Qualifications Framework

15. The Beauty Industry Training Advisory Committee (ITAC) was set up to facilitate the implementation of the Hong Kong Qualifications Framework (QF) in the industry. The proposed QF is a voluntary system. It is a seven-level hierarchy that provides benchmarks for determining the level of complexity and difficulty of individual competency. It is also used to order and support qualifications of different natures and titles. The QF has in place an independent quality assurance (QA) system that would enhance recognition and acceptance of the qualifications in the industry, irrespective of the mode and source of learning.

16. The Beauty ITAC is responsible for the development of its industry-specific, task-based Specification of Competency Standards (SCS) for the identified core functional areas. The SCS, in the form of Units of Competency (UoCs), provides not only quantitative and qualitative specifications on the competency required for specific tasks, but also the integrated outcome standards required as well as information on the QF level and credit.

17. The SCS may be used to aid vocational curriculum design by vocational education and training providers, or in-service employee development by HR personnel, or best practice recognition and qualifications by awarding bodies within the industry. SCS is the cornerstone to enhance workforce competitiveness and industry sustainability in the long run.

18. The QF aims to provide clear learning pathways for individuals to draw up their own roadmaps to obtain quality assured qualifications. Learners can either pursue a specific learning pathway to upgrade their skills in a particular area of specialization in a gradual and orderly manner (vertical development), or progress through traversing learning pathways to become multi-skilled (horizontal development). Full implementation of Qualifications Framework will cultivate an atmosphere of life-long learning in the industry. With the active participation of employers and employees as well as the wide acceptance of the industry, the QF will also encourage the development of quality training programmes by providers to meet the needs of the community and the industry.

Qualifications Framework levels

19. The QF has seven levels, from level 1 to level 7, where level 1 is the lowest and level 7 the highest. The outcome characteristic of each level is depicted by a set of generic level descriptors (GLD) (Appendix 1). The GLD specifies for each QF level its generic complexity, demand and challenges in the four dimensions below:

- a. Knowledge and intellectual skills;
- b. Process;
- c. Application, autonomy and accountability; and
- d. Communications, IT skills and numeracy.

The UoCs (See Chapter 4) are benchmarked to the QF levels in accordance with the GLD. It is worth noting that competency elements in a UoC may fall in some or all of the GLD dimensions as what it naturally should be. The QF level assignment is essentially a holistic judgement on the unit's integrated outcome requirement.

20. QF levels are discrete. That is, there cannot be assignment of UoC in-between QF levels. Also, UoCs that may not fully match the characteristic requirement of one or more dimensions of a level would be "rounded" to the level below.

Competency Standards

Major Functional Areas of the Beauty Industry

21. The Beauty ITAC has recommended that the major functional areas under the SCS for the Beauty Industry are as follows:

(i) Make-up

The knowledge and skills in this functional area enable practitioners to provide professional aesthetic cosmetic services. The knowledge they are to acquire covers cosmetic care; aesthetic analysis of the face; facial contouring; colour and lighting, contraindications and precautions for the use of cosmetic products; sanitisation of cosmetic tools, etc. The specialist skills in this area include those required for day and evening make-up, bridal make-up, photography make-up, film and television make-up, stage make-up, special effects make-up, seasonal colouring, character make-up, face and body painting, etc.

(ii) Nail, Hand and Foot Care

A set of skills standards and working procedures are formulated with reference to the specialist knowledge and skills required in nail care services, which cover hygiene and infectious diseases; the ability to assess clients' physical condition as reflected in their finger-nails and toe-nails and provide recommendations on appropriate treatments; the structure of the finger-nail and toe-nail; nail ailment cases; natural nail care (including filing and cuticle treatments, buffing and enamel application techniques, as well as basic and advanced mechanical polishing); wearing and removal of artificial nails (including French manicure, acrylic and gel nails); nail repair and enamel removal; nail art (including nail art design, hand painting, airbrushing and 3D embedding); treatment of nail conditions; sterilization and sanitisation of tools; relevant contraindications and precautions; professional conduct, etc. Equipped with knowledge and skills in these aspects, practitioners will be able to provide safe, comfortable and reliable nail care services.

Another set of skills standards and procedures are formulated with reference to the specialist knowledge and skills required in foot care services, which cover hygiene and infectious diseases; the ability to assess clients' physical condition as reflected in their feet and provide recommendations on appropriate treatments; the bone structure and muscular system of the foot; common foot conditions (such as athlete's foot, eczema, calluses, varicose veins and flat feet); foot skin care (such as cleansing, exfoliation, massage and relevant contraindications and precautions); sterilization and sanitisation of tools, etc. Equipped with knowledge and skills in these aspects, practitioners will be able to provide safe, comfortable and reliable foot care services.

A further set of skills standards and procedures for this functional area are formulated with reference to the specialist knowledge and skills required in hand care services, which cover hygiene and infectious diseases; the ability to assess clients' physical condition as reflected in their hands and provide recommendations on appropriate treatments; the bone structure and muscular system of the hand; common hand conditions (such as irritant contact dermatitis and calluses on the hands); hand skin care (such as maintenance treatments, cleansing, exfoliation, massage and relevant contraindications and precautions); sterilization and sanitisation of tools, etc. Equipped with knowledge and skills in these aspects, practitioners will be able to provide safe, comfortable and reliable hand care services.

(iii) Beauty Health Care

The knowledge in aromatherapy, spa, reflexology, Chinese medicine beauty care, nutrition for natural beauty, hygiene management, etc. is much needed to meet the burgeoning demand for various health care services. This functional area covers natural beauty care that uses colour, light, heat, electric and music therapies; relevant massage techniques as well as their therapeutic effects and contraindications; the history of aromatherapy; the respective properties, therapeutic effects, application methods, adverse effects and contraindications of essential oils, carrier oils and floral water; knowledge of the use and contraindications of health foods, functional foods and Chinese wellness foods, etc. Equipped with knowledge and skills in these aspects as well as management, safe operation of beauty equipment and professional conduct, practitioners will be able to provide safe, reliable and natural beauty health care services.

(iv) Beauty Care

This functional area covers basic facial care treatments (including face, eye, lip, neck and shoulder treatments); the skin structure; skin diagnosis and analysis; seasonal skin care and the relevant contraindications; various face and head massage techniques; ingredients and therapeutic effects of beauty care products; cosmeceutical science; the operation, maintenance and safe use of beauty equipment, practical knowledge about intense pulse light (IPL) treatments as well as their applications, therapeutic effects and contraindications; professional conduct and the image of practitioners; hygiene management and infectious diseases; Equipped with knowledge and skills in these aspects, practitioners will be able to provide safe and reliable beauty and skin care services.

(v) Body Care

Comprehensive skills standards and practical guidelines for this functional area are formulated to meet the development needs of the body care and slimming sector as well as the growing market demand for its services. This area covers professional conduct; hygiene management and infectious diseases; the therapeutic effects, techniques and contraindications of a variety of massage treatments (such as Chinese, Swedish, Japanese, Thai, Hawaiian, hot stone, breast enhancing and abdominal massage treatments); basic practical knowledge about the operation, use and application of standard beauty equipment; practical knowledge, procedures, therapeutic effects and contraindications of IPL body care and breast care treatments; and the procedures, contraindications and precautions for waxing treatments.

The area of slimming management covers slimming and the criteria for bodily beauty; weight management, dietary control, causes and assessment of obesity; the operation and safety of slimming equipment; and relevant contraindications and precautions for slimming, etc. Equipped with knowledge and skills in these aspects, practitioners will be able to provide safe and reliable beauty services.

(vi) Beauty Education and Training

To maintain the quality standards of training programmes for beauticians so as to meet the growing development needs of the beauty industry and the rising market demand for its services, professional standards for trainers in different functional areas are formulated by bringing together contemporary corporate training methods and industry-specific knowledge. Attaching equal importance to specialist skills and knowledge as well as professional conduct for trainers, this functional area covers relevant professional competency; trainers' duties and professional conduct; presentation and communication skills for teaching; analysis and assessment of training needs; course design and planning; training venue management; safety measures; assessment of trainees' performance and learning progress; costing of training projects, etc.

(vii) Customer Services and Communication

Customer service and management strategies are formulated with reference to the relevant knowledge and communicative skills required of practitioners. This functional area covers consumer psychology; customer service strategy; customer service quality management and customer relations management; quality professional service; customer services skills; complaint handling; reception and provision of beauty care information; provision of advice on suitable beauty care treatments; and the maintenance of professional ethics and image. Equipped with knowledge and skills in these aspects, practitioners will be able to provide professional and quality customer services.

(viii) Marketing and Sales

This functional area covers knowledge of sales techniques and marketing with which practitioners can develop sales and marketing plans for beauty products and services. Practitioners should be knowledgeable in the characteristics of all kinds of beauty services, ingredients as well as therapeutic and side effects of various beauty products including newly launched ones, and the promotion of beauty services and related products. They should also have knowledge in market environment, consumer behaviour, market concept, marketing plan, promotion strategy, personal selling skills, e-commerce, market research and customer relations management. Equipped with knowledge in these aspects, practitioners will be able to promote the sale of beauty products or services.

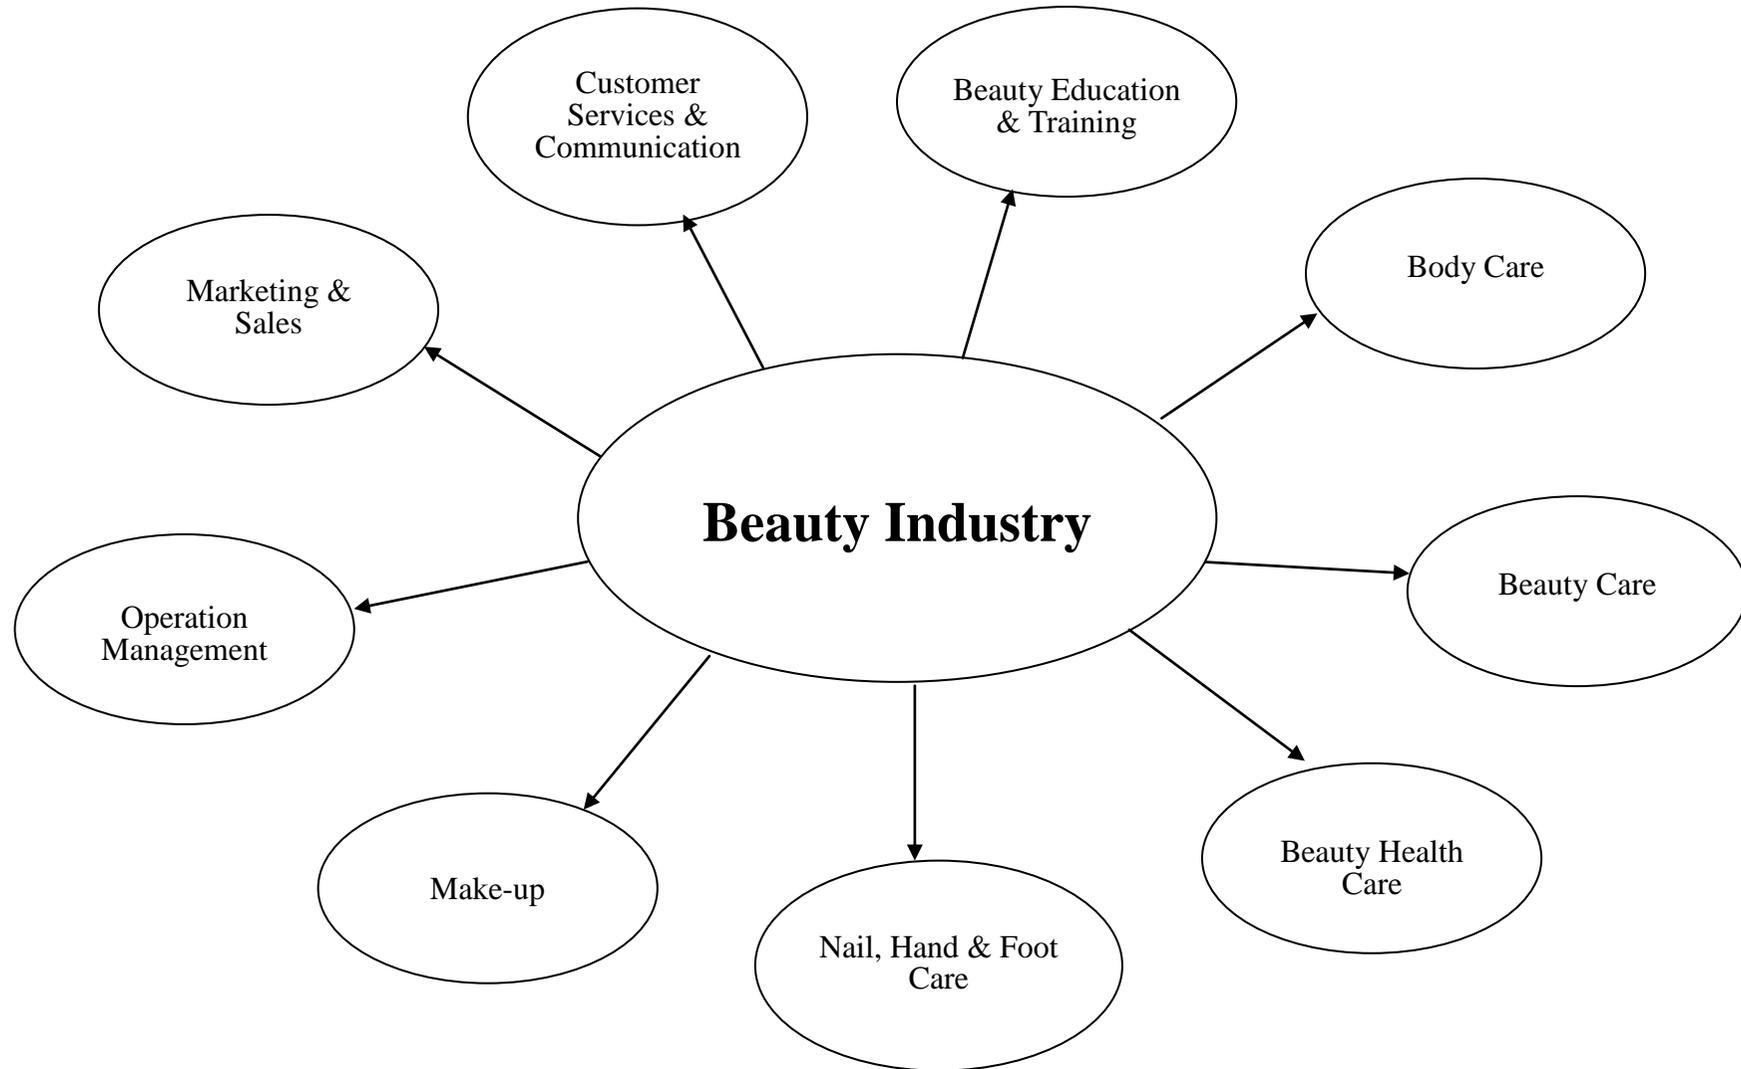

(ix) Operation Management

This functional area covers knowledge in contemporary enterprise management with which practitioners can develop business plans specifically tailored to the operational and development needs of the industry. Practitioners should be knowledgeable in staff management (which includes attendance management); training system; service and customer management standards; management of goods, inventory, materials and equipment; financial and administrative management; legal requirements in commercial, employment and other relevant matters; access to the latest information and technologies of beauty services; public health and safety management, etc. Equipped with knowledge in these aspects, practitioners will be able to contribute to greater efficiency in business management and the provision of reliable and safe beauty services.

Please refer to Figure 1 for further information.

22. Based on the Generic Level Descriptors and these functional areas, the Beauty ITAC has formulated a List of Competency for the practitioners of the industry (Chapter 4). The List provides details of the training requirements of the industry by different competency levels and major functional areas. It is designed to provide individual learners with a clear and unified guide for drawing up their learning programmes. With reference to this guide, they can either pursue learning in a particular professional area along a progression path (vertical development) to upgrade their specialized skills, or learn a variety of skills through various pathways (horizontal development) to diversify their skills in their own profession.

Competency Standards

23. Competency standards refer to the skills and knowledge required for performing a certain job function. They represent the industry benchmarks for the skills, knowledge and attributes required to perform competently in a particular job. Thus they are the most important part of the SCS. All examples in the UoCs are only for reference.

Units of Competency

24. The Beauty ITAC has set out the competency standards for various job functions in the form of units of competency, which describe the performance and standard required for each competency concerned. The Unit of Competency and their full details are listed in Chapter 4.

Each “unit of competency” (UoC) comprises these eight items:

1. Title
2. Code
3. Range
4. Level
5. Credit
6. Competency
7. Assessment criteria
8. Remarks

Recognition of Prior Learning

25. A major concept of QF is that individuals may acquire knowledge and skills from their work experience, apart from attending formal training courses. People may, through the Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL) mechanism, obtain relevant qualifications if their experience, skills and knowledge gained in the workplace meet the competency standards set by the ITAC.

26. For a long time, while some beauty practitioners have received their training from beauty training schools or equipment suppliers, others have learned their trade according to industry-recognised training standards. It is not an easy and simple task to recognise, on the basis of the competency standards, skills and knowledge that are acquired through such training pathways. The Beauty ITAC will therefore develop an appropriate RPL mechanism, and will for that purpose solicit comments and opinions from members of the industry.
